

Jules Lazar Routbort, In Memoriam
March 11th, 2012

Opening Words

Personal Statements by Family and Friends

Mark Routbort
Dileep Singh
Don Hillebrand
Barbara Hickernell
Maria de la Cinta Lorenzo-Martin
Gerry Lander
Antonio Ramirez de Arellano
Jennifer Norton
Julia Routbort Baskin

Candle Remembrance

Ben, Gabriel, and Zachary Baskin Megan and Emily Routbort

Responsive Reading

In the pursuit of understanding, knowledge, and in the joy of teaching others, we will remember him.
In the enjoyment of fine wine or excellent meals shared with friends, . . .
In the care taken for the little things, in plans set carefully with love . . .
In our hope for future generations, the pride we take from, and the guidance we give them, . . .
In adventures planned, in distant travel considered, . . .
In the love of family and friends, when we gather to share . . .
So long as we live, so he too shall live
For he is part of us, part of our memory
Part of our love.

Closing Words

"And ever has it been that love knows not its own depth until the hour of separation."
Khalil Gibran